7	Indian Design Mark certification is presently available with only a limited number of manufacturers. The underlying objective of prescribing this certification, as understood, is to ensure compliance with recognized ergonomic design standards for the offered products. In this regard, it is pertinent to mention that certifications generally accepted within the industry for assessing ergonomic compliance include: Indian Design Mark (IDM) / AIOTA - for ergonomic compliance We would like to further highlight that AIOTA (All India Occupational Therapists' Association) certification also ensures adherence to ergonomic design principles comparable to those evaluated under the Indian Design Mark. Both certifications assess products based on ergonomics, user comfort, posture support, and functional usability.	As per tender documents
