SECTION– VII

TERMS OF REFERENCE/TECHNICAL SPECIFICATION

SECTION – VII

TERMS OF REFERENCE/ TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

1. BACKGROUND

The proposed Rauni Pumped Storage Scheme area is located in the Jashpur district of state of Chhattisgarh.

The proposed Rouni Pumped Storage Hydro-electric Project (2100 MW) envisages utilization of available head between proposed upper dam and proposed lower dam near Rouni of Jashpur District. An Underground Power House (UGPH) will be located in between two reservoirs. Both the reservoirs will be interconnected through water conductor system and the generator and turbines installed at the power house.

2. PROJECT LOCATION

The project falls in the N 23°1'1.78" & E 83°38'11.86" and N 23°3'16.01", E 83°37'3.92". It is located 94 Km towards the northwest direction from the district headquarters of Jashpur.

The proposed Upper as well as lower reservoirs are accessible at present through a district road at 14 Km and 7 Km from Bagicha Main Road respectively. Both the dams fall under revenue/cultivated land as per information available at this level.

The Rouni Pumped Storage Scheme project is located in the Jashpur district of Chhattisgarh as shown in figure given below:

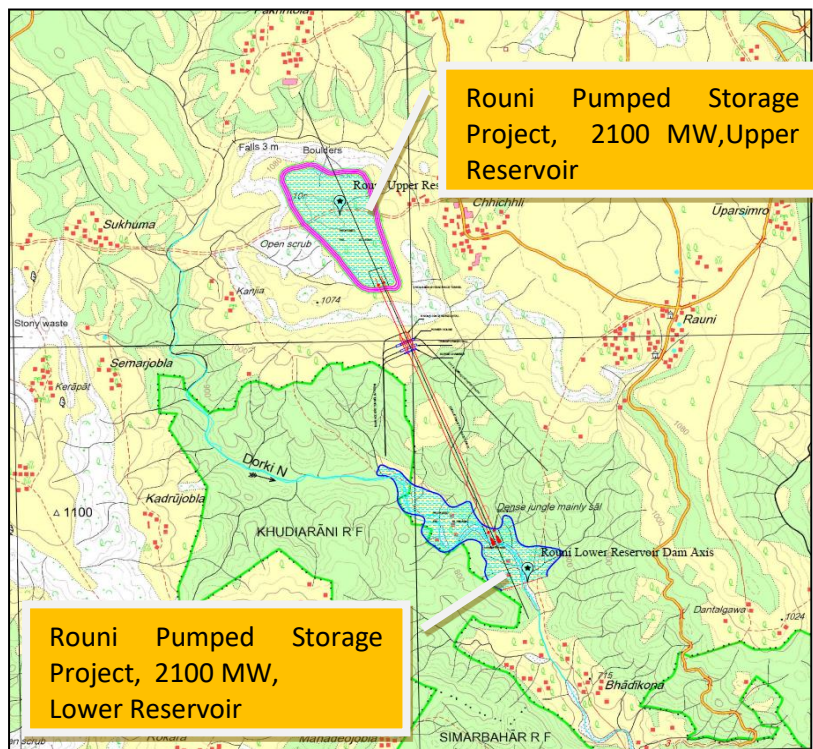

Fig. - 1 : Location Map

3. ACCESS TO PROJECT SITE:

The proposed site can be approached by Road, Rail and Airways as below:

SL. No.	Medium of Transport	Details
1	By Air	The Nearest Airport is Birsa Munda which is about 250km (approx) from the project site.
2	By Rail	The nearest railway station is Ambikapur railway station which is about 80 Km from project site.
3	By Water	The nearest sea port is Gopalpur Port which is about 580 Km from the project site.

4. OBJECTIVE OF INVESTIGATION

Geological investigations proposed to be conducted at various locations of Rouni Pumped Storage Project (2100MW) to study and understand the geological features along this area and its influence on the location of the project components. Moreover, the power house complex comes under high ground cover which is required to be investigated through deep drill holes with average depth of about 350 meters. Therefore special equipment i.e. deep drill hole machine is required at project site to completed the job in totality. These machines should be transfer on head load as per the project requirements.

These investigations will help in designs for construction of project components which shall have a long term bearing on the construction and operation of these components. For this purpose, the investigation shall aim at determining the following:

- Geological settings of the project area and its vicinity;
- Geological conditions related to the project; Characteristics of foundation materials and their properties;
- Geotechnical design parameters for the project components;
- Depth to bed rock or thickness of overburden and weathering limits;
- Types of lithological units present in the foundation;
- Characteristics of significant geological and structural features such as bedding/foliation, joints, fissures, folds, faults, shear zones, dykes, cavities and their influence on structural stability of the foundation;
- Permeability of the strata;
- Depth of water table;
- Slope Stability;

Scope of Investigation

To attain the objectives, the investigations listed below shall be performed in the project area:

About 20 Nos. Drill Holes having total approximated aggregate depth of 2289 m are to be explored (Core drilling) in rock including overburden using hydraulic feed rotary drill and double/triple tube core barrel with DIAMOND CORE bit including collection of core samples, maintaining continuous record of core recovery / RQD, keeping the cores in wooden core boxes, transporting to laboratory, providing cap on top on completion of the same, all complete as per the BIS specification and instructions of the Engineer- in Charge. Moreover, the contractor shall, without extra charge, provide all assistance with every appliance, labour, operator and other things necessary for intermediate investigations during drilling viz. Hydro fracture, in-situ, deformability tests etc.

The above investigations shall be carried out in all the drill holes as indicated in the details of investigations envisaged in each hole as detailed in subsequent sections.

As the project location is remote sufficient quantity of drilling bits/accessories/core boxes etc., shall be planned and transported to project site.

Contractor shall nominate a full time coordinator for single point interaction with WAPCOS, at site till the completion of the contract. The coordinator will submit daily and weekly report to our Project Manager in specified format with intimation to SED (H&PS). Contractor should also depute a competent person at site to oversee, execute the progress of investigation and proper coordination with our geologist. Contractor is responsible to prepare all the core log sheets, photo logs and all other reports required for submission of investigation reports.

Site specific challenges shall be addressed properly and taken into consideration during submission of the Technical & Financial Bids.

Sub-surface investigations

Subsurface investigations shall be carried out to gain geological and geotechnical information below the natural ground level and river bed levels in the designated project areas. These investigations shall be conducted using surface invasive techniques, principal among which are the following:

- Rotary core drilling
- In-situ Permeability testing

4.1 ROTATORY CORE DRILLING

The test procedures shall be carried out in accordance with the specified international standard (e.g., ASTM Standard, British Standard and International Society of Rock Mechanics (ISRM) Suggested Methods, Indian Standards). The proposed alternative standard from Consultant shall be formally submitted to the Client for approval. The full testing and reporting procedure (including forms) shall be included in the submission.

Approximate size of casing outer diameter/inner diameter for various sizes is as under given in Table 2:

Table 2: Size of Casings
Type of Casing	Casing Tube OD/ID (mm)
P	139.7/127
H	114.3/101.6
N	89.1/76.4
B	73.2/60.5

While driving through overburden, initially higher size (diameter) such as “P” series casing with required shoes is used followed by “H” series casing. Generally rock drilling is started in “P” series and best cores obtained are also of “N” series. However, in case of very deep holes, “B” & “A” series accessories have to be used. Skill of drilling crew is also of paramount importance and as per circumstances with respect to depth and formation such as kind of overburden or kind of rock etc. the use of proper (surface set or impregnated) bits, correct speed of rotation, bit pressure and feed pump pressure and discharge are to be regulated to obtain optimum output.

4.2 WORK PLAN

The Contractor shall submit to the WAPCOS’s appointed representative, their work plan which shall be approved before the commencement of the work along with the time lines and the targets of the different works. The Contractor shall provide and keep an updated work plan giving details on how the various parts of the work are planned, together with a detailed time schedule.

4.3 CORE DRILLING

Rotary core drilling in soils /overburden shall be done with at least a core diameter of $D > 80$ mm. Triple and Double tube core barrels can be used , however triple tube core barrels shall be used to obtain the best possible core recovery. Drilling in solid rock may be carried out with a core diameter of $D > 56$ mm using Triple/double tube core barrels. The Contractor shall carefully review the time required for moving the rigs between boreholes, in-situ testing in boreholes, make allowances for equipment maintenance, breakdowns, spare parts and any other factors that could delay progress and agree with the Client for the number and type of rigs to be mobilized to achieve the time schedule.

Unless otherwise instructed all casing shall be removed on completion of the borehole. All completed boreholes shall be capped with concrete monument cast into the ground. The boreholes with standpipes shall have a lockable cap to allow access to the standpipe. The borehole number will be marked on the concrete.

During drilling any loss of water, change in water colour, rate of drilling and sudden drop of the core barrel needs to be accurately noted and recorded in the log for better understanding of the sub-surface conditions.

A drilling methodology has been suggested which shall be followed to achieve optimum core recovery.

4.4 WATER USE

The Contractor shall not advance the drilling in a soil or overburden by adding water except in the case of dry granular soils. For conditions where the addition of water is permitted, the Contractor shall use the minimum amount of water necessary for advancing the drilling. Where borings reveal soft alluvial soils or where sub-artesian groundwater loosens granular soils, the Contractor may be required to add and maintain a head of water during drilling, sampling, and testing in order to avoid disturbance caused by the removal of the overburden. The water used for drilling and testing shall be free from suspended clay and other deleterious materials. Settling tanks shall be provided to improve the natural water quality if required by the Water tightness of the bed rock is determined by conducting water pressure tests and assessment of where and how much leakage could occur. These tests are usually conducted at pressures equal or slightly more to the head expected to be encountered.

The equipment for pressure testing consists of a pump capable of delivering the specified maximum pressure, a water meter to measure in liters, hoses and valves to permit the measured water flow to be directed in the hole or bypassed and to permit retaining the water in the hole under specified pressure, an accurate pressure gauge of adequate capacity, two approved packers for isolating any specified section of the hole and an adequate supply of clean water. The ground water tables shall be recorded daily.

4.5 CORE RECOVERY

During Exploratory core drilling maximum core recovery shall be attempted. Presence of weak and weathered seams, faults, shear zones, clay layers etc. is obtained. Rotary core drilling shall produce circular cores of specified diameter throughout the core length. The type of drill bit, drilling rates and management of the drill shall be in a way that 100% core recovery can be obtained in any drill run, where the condition of the soil/rock permits.

Core recovery less than 90% in any drill run will not generally be acceptable for payment, unless this is satisfied that 90% recovery is impracticable under the prevailing conditions. If in the opinion of the, 90% recovery can be achieved, the Contractor, after consultation with the engineer, shall take measures to improve the core recovery. These measures shall be at the Contractor's expense, unless it is demonstrated to the Engineer's satisfaction that the core recovery cannot be improved. When any recovery is less than 90% for full length of core run longer than 1m, then the next run should be reduced to 1m or less.

4.6 LENGTH OF CORE RUN

The first core run in each hole shall not exceed 1 m in length. Subsequent drill runs shall not normally exceed 3 m in length and the core barrel shall be removed from the drill hole as often as is required to obtain the best possible core recovery.

In the highly weathered zone, dry drilling shall be carried out with the core length not exceeding 50cm.

4.7 CORE EXTRACTION

The core shall be carefully extracted from the core barrel using a method that does not damage the core. Hammering or banging the core barrel on the ground shall not be permitted. The core will be placed in core boxes immediately after extraction in the correct sequence. Soil, weathered rock, highly fractured rock and sludge will be extracted into half round PVC pipe and sealed in plastic sleeves or cling wrap to permit handling and preserve moisture.

The core losses shall be marked in the correct position (not at the end of the run) with a red block of the same length as the core loss. The block shall be marked "core loss" and the core loss depth interval given. Where samples are taken from the core box they will be replaced with a yellow block of the same length as the sample. The block shall be marked "sample" and the sample depth interval given. All block markings should be legible on the core photographs. Unpainted blocks shall be used to prevent core moving within partly filled core box. Proper direction of the core run shall be marked on the core box divider walls.

4.8 CORE BOXES AND STORAGE

The core boxes shall be of robust construction with a lockable lid (to prevent core disturbance/loss during transportation) and partitions spaced to suit the different core sizes. Handles shall be provided on both long sides to assist transportation of the boxes.

The inside of the lid of the box shall be clearly and indelibly marked with the project name, location, borehole number, box number and core depth interval. Core boxes shall be kept off the ground and dry while at the drill site. Full core boxes shall be stored in a weather proof temporary core shed at a secure location close to the site. The core shed shall be provided by the Contractor. An undercover area shall be provided at the temporary core store of sufficient size to allow at least 10 boxes to be laid out at a time. The area shall be adequately lit and waist high working surfaces/ supports shall be provided for logging purposes.

The CSPGCL shall identify a long term storage facility for the cores. The Contractor shall deliver the cores from the temporary store to the long term storage facility when instructed by the CSPGCL.

Core shall be dampened to highlight the natural colour and fabric of the core. Any wrapped core shall be unwrapped for the photo and rewrapped afterwards.

Strong shadows on the core shall be avoided (flash shall not be used). The markings on the blocks shall be readable on the photographs. The photographs shall be in sharp focus and of true color. The photographs shall be submitted to the WAPCOS for the approval. Any photos that do not satisfy the above requirements shall be re-photographed until satisfactory.

4.9 DAILY DRILLING RECORDS AND CORE LOGS

Daily drilling reports shall be prepared by the Contractor and maintained at site in a proper register. The daily progress report register should be at the disposal of the representative of CSPGCL on his demand. Since the reports may be partly contractual in nature their draft content shall be subjected to approval by the CSPGCL. The proposed report form shall be submitted to CSPGCL for review and comment on its technical content, before approval is given.

It is emphasized that the report should include any information that may be relevant to the interpretation of the geological or ground water conditions and the logging of the core. In addition to the groundwater items noted, the report should record such matters as the depths and reasons for core losses, Hole instability, cavities, unusually hard or soft layers, change in the colour of return water, sudden change in the speed of rotation of drilling and any drilling difficulties associated with the geological conditions.

The interpretation and projection of the likely influences of the discontinuity parameters observed in the cores to its neighborhood shall be clearly reflected in the report.

4.10 SUGGESTED METHODOLOGY OF DRILLING

More than 90% core recovery in each run is required for realistic interpretation of subsurface geology. IS 4464:2020 should be followed while carrying out the Drilling Investigation works and data interpretation/core logging. Drilling in solid rock may be carried out with a core diameter of $D > 50$ mm using Triple/double tube core barrels.

The following guidelines are suggested for maximum core recovery:

- a) The preferred hole size is NX.
- b) Type of bits: Diamond
- c) More than 90% core recovery in each run should be ensured.
- d) To achieve this, controlling vibration, rotation, water circulation, using good diamond bits, straight drill rods, taking short runs (e.g. 30cm or less) etc. should be adopted.
- e) Even triple tube core barrel may be used in soft, closely jointed, fractured rockmass to ensure the suggested core recovery.
- f) Daily progress log sheets of drilling operation should contain the following:
 - a. date & time of every run,
 - b. rate of penetration and tentative drilling pressure
 - c. water loss- nil, partial loss, full loss
 - d. colour of return water
 - e. run length
 - f. recovery %
 - g. gap/fall of drill rods/ penetration of rod without applied pressure
 - h. the collar elevation
 - i. coordinates
 - j. depth of hole
 - k. size of hole
 - l. type of bit used

- m. casing depth & size
- n. Daily water table should also be noted in the log sheet before starting drilling operation and completion of drilling operation.
- g) Preservation of cores
 - a. The cores should be preserved in core box with marking of runs in a very good manner so that the cores should not be disturbed for geological logging after completion of the drill hole and also for verification during construction of the project
 - b. The numbering of cores (size more than 2cm) with arrow towards depth should also be marked on the cores with continuous numbering in all the runs of a drill hole
 - c. Photographs of cores with numbering and runs.
 - d. In case of triple tube, photographs should be taken within the barrel after splitting the barrel as well as in the core box.
- h) It is also proposed to carry out the water percolation test in ascending & descending order at 3m interval in the holes and determination of secondary permeability (K/Lugeon).
- i) Any other important observations.

4.11 FIELD PERMEABILITY TESTS

Constant Head Method and Reducing Head Method For the in-situ subsurface investigation of the soil, Reducing Head Method and Constant Head Method shall be performed as per the relevant standards. The results obtained shall be documented properly and interpolated along with the results from the core drilling. The constant head and reducing head test shall be carried out for every 3m depth of drilling length or as per the instruction of WAPCOS geologist. Field permeability test consist of constant and falling head method for soil and Lugeon test for rock. Lugeon tests shall be conducted to determine the permeability of rock strata in the subsurface. This shall give the properties of the rock in terms of water tightness, fractures of the rock. This shall be done using Pressure tests, by use of pump to establish controlled constant selected pressure over a certain period of time and flow meters to measure flow. The permeability test shall be conducted by Lugeon Test and the frequency of test shall be performed at every 3m interval of drilled length or as per the instruction of WAPCOS geologist. The observation of the test shall be suitably recorded in appropriate format and analyzed.

5. DOCUMENTATION

Upon completion of geological investigation, the data generated from these investigations shall be documented. The subsurface investigations and geological illustrations in the investigation reports shall be sufficiently comprehensive to supply reliable information on all geological conditions that can influence the design, construction and cost of the project. The following maps and test data shall be included in the documentation as applicable. Geological logs of drilling work including results of permeability test.

6. TEST REQUIREMENTS

6.1 CORE DRILLING

The location & actual length of the drill holes will be decided by the site Engineer/geologist after considering the site conditions and materials retrieved from the core runs during the drilling of the holes. As such the payments for bore holes shall be as per the actual depth of drilling.

6.2 IN-SITU TESTS

The water pressure test comprising of Constant Head Method and Falling Head method for the soil and Lugeon Test for rock shall be carried out at every 3m run of the drill length in each Bore Hole. The rates quoted shall therefore be for every test conducted and the payment accordingly be applied in drilling rate. The Test and the reports for these tests shall be as per the international or Indian standards.

7. PROTECTION OF ENVIRONMENT

While conducting site geological investigations, necessary measures shall be adopted to protect the environment of the project areas and its surroundings. During the investigations, the following protective measures shall be enforced: Access routes to the investigation sites shall be selected with care to minimize damage to the environment.

Operation of investigation equipment shall be controlled at all times, and the extent of damaged areas shall be held to the minimum consistent with the requirements for obtaining adequate data. The site camps /dwellings shall have proper waste disposal arrangement. After the investigations are completed, areas disturbed by the investigation shall be restored to its natural appearances.

8. Time Schedule

The works shall be completed in 08 (Eight) Months in all respect, from the date of commencement.
